We have attempted to bring into focus a large number of essential terms incorporated in the glossary keeping in view the advancement in computer science. The Commission is duty bound to monitor the development in scientific and technical terminologies and accordingly publish improvised compendium in future as and when necessary.

The preparation and completion of this book is specially due to total dedication of members and staff of the Commission whose committed efforts have been fruitful. We hope that readers would find it useful. Suggestions, if any, are most welcome.
